BUSINESS IN THE 21ST CENTURY

AMANDA BENNETT

EXECUTIVE EDITOR OF BLOOMBERG NEWS

DEIRDRE CONNELLY

PRESIDENT OF NA PHARMACEUTICALS AT GLAXOSMITHKLINE

On May 15, SPW paired with the World Affairs Council for a wildly successful event. Over 225 attendees came to hear guest speakers Amanda Bennett, Executive Editor of Bloomberg News, and Deirdre Connelly, President of GSK NA Pharmaceuticals. The duo discussed the changing face of business today and what to expect for the future. Deirdre spoke to the importance of regaining the American public's trust, which she says is best achieved by emphasizing company transparency. Amanda discussed how technology has changed the news industry and modernized business operations.

DEIRDRE CONNELLY AND AMANDA BENNETT DISCUSSED WOMEN IN RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY. DEIRDRE SAID THERE ARE MANY WOMEN IN THIS FIELD, BUT THERE NEEDS TO BE MORE WOMEN LEADING THESE RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT TEAMS.

PRESENTER CAROL JENSEN, CMO OF WAWA, DISCUSSED THE MOST IMPORTANT FACTORS IN MARKETING. "NETWORKING IS CRITICAL," SHE SAID.

Carol Jensen, Chief Marketing Officer of Wawa, spoke about the marketing strategies and branding tactics utilized by the industry powerhouse on June 21. Over 225 attendees joined us for breakfast at the Radnor Valley Country Club, making it SPW's 25th consecutive sold-out event! Carol kicked off her presentation with some trivia about Wawa and disclosed that the company sells over 150 million cups of coffee a year! Carol also discussed their marketing strategy, called "blue ocean," which focuses on value innovation. "Growth is found by creating value for the consumers," Carol said.

STATS

- Only 10% of all venture capitalists are women.
- Women-operated, venture-backed companies have 12% higher revenues.
- 66% of women aged 18-35 list having a “successful career” as one of their highest priorities.
- Philadelphia ranks #9 on the top 10 list of largest metro areas for women-owned businesses.
- PA is the 6th largest state for the number of women-owned businesses.
- 3.8% of women in their 20s hold master’s degrees whereas 2.1% of men in their 20s hold master’s degrees.
- There are only 18 women on the Fortune 1000 CEO list.

“I’ve learned that you can’t have everything and do everything at the same time.”

– Oprah Winfrey

When the debate broke out over “Working Moms” versus “Stay-at-Home Moms,” I felt like I was hearing a tape from twenty or thirty years ago. Isn’t it about time we put the Mommy Wars to rest? Some women do find a way to go full-steam throughout their careers. Others amp up their careers in the beginning and then dial back when family attention is required. Many women tend to the family by day and then head off to jobs in the evening. Some women choose to leave the traditional workplace when they start a family, but find new ways to thrive as “Mompreneurs.”

I have found there is no such thing as perfect work-life balance. Sometimes our jobs demand every ounce of our energy and focus, and other times, family or personal issues require our undivided attention. Workplaces need to be flexible to the needs of women (and men) if they want to keep talented women in the pipeline and broaden the slate of leaders in executive suites and boardrooms. Work shouldn’t always have to be a 110-percent-or-nothing proposition.

SPW provides a forum for women of all ages and stages of their careers to network, reenergize and share the challenges of today’s work environment. Our monthly events always have a way of speaking to something relevant that’s going on in our multi-dimensional lives.

Join us for our next event on July 25 with Lisa Scottoline as she presents “Never Take ‘No’ for an Answer.” Lisa is known as a best-selling author, but did you know she started out as a lawyer and only wrote part-time while raising her daughter as a single mother? Lisa is a perfect example of how a woman can have a great job, be a mother and still reinvent herself in both arenas. Don’t miss this one!

See you soon!

SPW Opens the Doors

Interview with Barb Doyne, Financial Services Representative and Financial Advisor at Brumbaugh Wealth Management Group

SPW: How did you first get involved with SPW/the Chamber? What prompted you to do so?

Barb: When I returned to the workforce two years ago to build my financial advisory business, the word-around-town was that SPW is the premier place to re-establish my network. After one event, all that “hype” was confirmed. I knew that it wouldn’t be enough to just attend events, so I joined The Main Line Chamber of Commerce and Eileen Connolly-Robbins offered me the opportunity to get involved as a committee member of SPW, and now I’m on the SPW Advisory Council.

SPW: Which Chamber programs or events do you find most useful?

Barb: The best features of SPW are the diversity of its programs and events and it also provides an opportunity to get involved. As a member, I get to work with other chamber members and the staff to identify new opportunities for the organization and help create its programs and events, which has allowed me to develop stronger business relationships. I personally enjoy the Main Line signature events, SPW programs and the Make More Save Mores Series™.

SPW: How would you describe your networking experience with other members?

Barb: All of the members involved within the MLCC and/or SPW are there to enhance their business or grow professionally. The shared desire to grow and develop is a common bond that makes networking such a success through this organization.

SPW: How has your investment/membership in SPW/the Chamber contributed to your business success?

Barb: As a member, my network has grown exponentially over the past year. Through sponsoring SPW events, Brumbaugh is able to truly enhance its brand recognition and connect with clients at quality events with unprecedented networking opportunities.

SPW NON-PROFIT SPOTLIGHT: RSVP OF MONTGOMERY COUNTY

RSVP of Montgomery County is a multiservice nonprofit organization that utilizes a dedicated corps of 1,200 volunteers to meet the critical human needs in and around Montgomery County, PA.

Offering a way for employees and individual volunteers to help improve their communities, several corporations have been partnering with RSVP to participate in team-building and community service opportunities. Groups of anywhere from five to 250 employees join together to make a lasting impact in their communities. Through 10 volunteer impact programs and 300 nonprofit agency partners, there are a variety of short and long-term projects.

Projects may include outdoor work at a local nature center, participating in RSVP's America Writes program by becoming pen pals to local students, wrapping books presented to local Head Start preschoolers, painting a local school's classroom or participating as special event volunteers. The possibilities are endless.

Additionally, RSVP's 10 Volunteer Impact Programs provide volunteers with unique opportunities to have a profound and direct impact on our community's most vulnerable populations, which include disadvantaged preschool children, at-risk youth, the elderly, those with low literacy skills, the unemployed, veterans and struggling nonprofit organizations.

To learn more about volunteering through RSVP or supporting their work in the surrounding community, please visit www.rsvpmc.org or call (610) 834-1040, ext.22.

Blue Ocean Strategy: How to Create Uncontested Market Space and Make Competition Irrelevant

By W. Chan Kim and Renée Mauborgne

"Don't compete with rivals—make them irrelevant" is the theme of this strategic marketing book. The authors, Kim and Mauborgne, discuss the fact that companies have always engaged in head-to-head competition in search of sustained profitable growth. However, they argue that in today's overcrowded industries, competing head-on results only in a bloody "red ocean" of rivals fighting over a shrinking profit pool. According to the authors, tomorrow's leading companies will only succeed by creating "blue oceans" of market space that hasn't been targeted, instead of fighting over the current market space. Blue Ocean strategic moves (aka "value innovation") create new value for both firms and consumers. Kim and Mauborgne present a framework that changes the way traditional business operates for a more profitable future.
